A first in the world, BenQ's Dual Screen feature allows teachers to create an immersive learning experience by connecting two seamlessly merged screens. What's more, you could pair with optional PointWrite touch module to have fully scalable and diverse interactive solutions for future-proofing your classroom. The multi touch capabilities, which can support Windows 8 touch interface, are enabled by the QWrite software to allow teachers to have students to collaborate and generate ideas together using one big screen. What you can also do with dual screen projection is multi tasks as for videos or writing, annotating on the big screen.

The QWrite software enables multi-user on screen collaboration with annotation tools to edit, highlight and co-create various documents together. All the work created can be effortlessly saved as a QWrite file or as a JPEG, PNG or BMP file on your computer. There is also the option to make video and screen recordings of your lessons for easy sharing. You can also import and upload images from your computer by creating a shortcut to access the local storage.

Write on or edit the projected document directly, with the access to QWrite’s free built-in image folders created on your computer conveniently. Each and every image creation can be saved for later sharing.
